

The film "the hate u give" is a movie that is based on the novel from Angie Thomas. The movie came out in 2019 and is American drama film. In the movie the main characters are Starr Carter, Khalil Harris and Maverick Carter.

Starr Carter is a black girl that lives in a poor neighborhood (Garden Heights) but goes to a white private school in Williamson, with her two brothers Seven and Sekani. In this school, Starr has only three friends and one of them is her boyfriend. In Starr's neighborhood there are always gun shots, people sell drugs or some people fight, that's why Starr's mom doesn't want her kids to go to the school in their neighborhood. For this reason Starr has two personalities, one in Garden Heights and one in Williamson. In her neighborhood they always fight with the police, because the police doesn't respect the black people. But on one night Starr drove home with Khalil (her black hometown friend) and the police stopped them. Khalil does everything the police wants him to do and gets out the car and puts his hands on it. But Khalil grabss again in the car to take a hair brush out, but the police officer thinks he sees a gun and shouts at him. After this happened the black people see that it's not right what happened start to protest. But they don't just protest for Khalil, they protest for black people and want to show that black lives matter. Also Starr's school in Williamson is suspended because of the protest, but Starr sees that most people just take advantage of it so they don'tt have to go to school. She sees that the people don't really care about Khalil or black people, so she wants to go public and share her story with the world. But the problem is that King ( a member of a group of black people that are looking at Starr's town) doesn't want Starr to go to public. Nevertheless she goes to the public and more and more people start to realise that kblack lives matter and start to protest, but the police stops them on their way and doesn't allow them to protest and starts getting violent. So Starr and Seven search protection at their dad's shop, but King was there and burns the shop. In the end Starr and Seven get saved by their family, but the King doesn't want them to be safe and starts a fight with Maverick. Because Sekani doesn't want King to hurt his dad, he pulls a gun out and points it at him. After Sekani pulls a gun out, Starr realizes that the hate you give attacks everyone, including the youngest.

I think it's one of the best films I saw in the last few years, because you can see how black people are treated and were treated (especially in the US). I think the movie isn't really something for kids, because it's too hard to understand, but I would recommend it for teenagers and adults.
